Economic Environment

(A) Internal Environment

Following are some of the internal factors that have a bearing on the business decisions and strategies.

1. Value System : Value system refers to ethical and moral values abided by the founders and other top officials of company. The value system has important implications in different matters like choice of business, the mission and objectives of the organisation, business policies and practices, etc. The success of the company largely depends on the extent to which the value system is shared by all in the organisation.

The success of Tata Iron and Steel Company Ltd. (TISCO) can be attributed to the value system of JRD Tata and the acceptance of it by other top officials in the company.

Infosys Technologies Ltd., a successful Indian IT and software services company, has core value : to achieve the objectives in an environment of fairness, honesty, transparency and courtesy towards its customers, employees, vendors and society at large.

2. Mission and Objectives : The success of the company also depends upon the mission and objectives of the company. The mission and objectives of the company determine the priorities, direction of development, business philosophy, business policy of the company. Every business has some objectives.

Tata Steel, a leading company in the iron and steel sphere, "strives to strengthen India's industrial base through the effective utilisation of staff and materials and the means envisaged to achieve this are high technology and productivity, consistent with modern management practices." It is this mission that has made it possible to climb the ladder of success and improve its presence in foreign markets.

3. Management Structure and Nature : The success of the company depends to a great extent on the business decisions. Business decisions, in turn, are influenced by the factors like organisational structure, the composition of the Board of Directors, extent of professionalism of management, etc. Some management structures are lax and lethargic in the decision making, while some others are quick and speedy.

The quality of Board of Directors is also important factor for the
